Training 401 Motivating Learners

Motivating Adult Learners!

Motivation is the key to transmitting knowledge and skills from an instructor to a student. Without motivation to learn, students are merely occupying classroom space for the required number of hours. If they have to be there, and you have to be there, isn't it the highest and best use of the time to actually teach them something? Yet, the benchmark method used in real estate classrooms every day is: tell them what the state thinks they need to know; issue a certificate of attendance; send them on their way and hope some of them will be able to pull the rabbit from the hat when the knowledge is needed to solve a real-world problem.

The screenshot shows a web browser displaying the 'Training 401 Motivating Learners' course page on the Carmel Streater Courses website. The browser's address bar shows the URL 'carmelstreatercourses.com/courses/training-401-motivating-learners/'. The website's navigation bar includes links for Home, About, Contact, Free Downloads, Policy Manual Templates, My Account, Log Out, and a Basket with a $0.00 total. The course title 'Training 401 Motivating Learners' is displayed, along with the status 'Course Status: Not Started'. A large red lightbulb icon with the number '401' inside is featured. The main heading is 'Welcome to Training Course 401'. Below this, the text 'Motivating Adult Learners!' is followed by a paragraph explaining the importance of motivation in learning. A section titled 'Course Objectives' lists three bullet points: 'Recognize the differences between child and adult learners', 'Examine the defining characteristics of adult learners', and 'Develop methods for motivating adult learners'. At the bottom, the 'Course Content' section is visible, with a blue bar containing the word 'LESSONS' and a 'STATUS' tab. A blue arrow points to the 'LESSONS' tab, and another blue arrow points to the 'Introduction' link below it.

Always LOGOUT when not engaged within the website. Your place will be saved for you to continue later.
